Slough project gets support

By Bob Slate
Staff writer

Area officials say a multi-million-dollar proposal to solve groundwater and stormwater problems in the Dobrey Slough area has received oral approval from state and federal agencies. If the project is formally approved, they say, residents within a large area will benefit. "I don't think there's a question in anybody's mind that this will help the entire area," said Walter "Shang" Greathouse, president of the Metro East Sanitary District. "This project can help relieve both stormwater drainage problems and groundwater table problems out there. In fact, when we went to the state with it (earlier this year), they admitted it probably should have been done years ago," Greathouse said. Granite City 7th Ward Alderman Kim Affolter — whom Greathouse credited with getting the project rolling — said the project includes installation of six or seven deep wells in a large area around Dobrey Slough in Granite City and unincorporated Nameoki Township. It also includes the replacement of a small stormwater pump in the slough area. The pump currently propels water into the Nameoki Ditch. It would be replaced with a 16-inch force main that would connect directly to Horseshoe Lake, she said.

Because the existing pump can only be operated after other stormwater has subsided from the Nameoki Ditch, it sometimes takes as long as a week after a heavy storm before water can be pumped away from the troubled area, to the ditch and eventually to the lake. The project is similar — but smaller in scope — to an $8 million project proposed for Madison and St. Clair counties several years ago but ultimately rejected by the Illinois Environmental Protection Agency. A portion of that project called for deep wells and an open ditch to move water along to Horseshoe Lake. But because of heavy metals in the water, the EPA would have required all water to be treated before being discharged into either Horseshoe Lake or the Mississippi River. The cost

Lathrop's proposal similar

By Bob Slate
Staff writer

Developer Steve Lathrop says his proposal to build a lake and subdivision in the flood-plagued Dobrey Slough area in northeast Granite City is essentially the same as a $2 million-plus proposal federal agencies have tentatively approved — at least in terms of stormwater drainage. The only difference, Lathrop says, is he was willing to foot the bill himself. "They could save a couple of million dollars if they would just let me expand my lake. It would hold the water until they could pump it down," Lathrop said. "There is nothing wrong with the existing stormwater system if you have adequate storage," he said.

to build a water treatment facility made the project prohibitive. "The EPA killed the whole deal and we just kind of dropped it. But Kim has been able to do what a lot of people have tried in the past and failed," Greathouse said.

Greathouse said an 80-foot-deep well was installed in the area about 10 years ago to test the effectiveness of such a plan. "It was effective in lowering the groundwater table nearby. But once you get more than a block or so away, it doesn't really help," he said. Greathouse and Affolter said they don't expect problems with heavy metal contamination in this smaller project.

Greathouse said much of the metal contamination came from an underground river or stream that runs through the American Bottoms, originating in Lake Michigan. He said the proposed deep wells should not be affected

Union workers put some finishing touches on the new Wilson Park Pool.

New swimming pool nearly ready

By Bob Slate
Staff writer

The equipment has arrived, employees have been hired, the rates have been set and the Granite City Park District swimming pool is nearing completion. "If the construction can be completed by the end of the month, we'll open them. But realistically, I think we're looking at somewhere between July 1 and July 15 (to open)," said Park Board President Nancy Sanders. Initially, the park district was hoping to be able to open the brand new pool by the end of last month. But weather and other problems have slightly delayed the opening. Once construction is finished, the pool will be ready to open within three to five days, Sanders said. Fees for park district residents will be identical to those set at the old pool. Non-resident fees are slightly higher. The pool will be open 1-8 p.m. daily. Daily fees are as follows: children four years old and younger (with an adult) — free; resident children aged 5-17 — $1; non-resident children — $3; resident adults — $1.50; non-resident adults — $4; seniors (over 55 years) — $1; non-resident seniors — $3. Season passes will also be offered. The rate will depend on when the pool opens. A one-hour lap swim will be offered each morning for $1 for residents and $3 for non-residents. A morning senior swim will also be offered, free for residents and $3 for non-residents. Two two-week sessions of swimming lessons are also planned. The rate will be $10 per session for residents, and $15 for non-residents. The pool will also be available to rent for private parties. The rate is $100 for two hours.

Tarpoft sees change in EPA approach

By Bob Slate
Staff writer

The U.S. Environmental Protection Agency has agreed in a federal court to clean up lead-contaminated soil, paint, house dust and drinking water at a Superfund site in Colorado.

And a Granite City official thinks that plan would work well for a Superfund site here as well. "This is a historic compromise. This is not the EPA we know," said Granite City Alderman Craig Tarpoft, chairman of the citizen advisory committee for the U.S. EPA Superfund project at the NL Industries/Taracorp site in Granite City, Madison and Venice.

"This is without a doubt the correct approach and what the EPA should be doing across the country — reducing exposure with meaningful results," Tarpoft said. Last month, a proposed consent decree was lodged in U.S. District Court in Denver.

Under the terms of the decree, U.S. EPA Region VII has agreed to clean up soils at the California Gulch Superfund site with lead concentrations of 3,500 parts per million (ppm) or more; house dust with lead concentrations of 2,500 ppm or more; paint containing six micrograms of lead or more per square centimeter; and pipes in homes in which drinking water has lead concentrations of 15 micrograms per liter.

Appointive board chairman?

After success in city, McGinness takes on county

By Scott Wuerz
and Bob Slate
Staff writers

A Granite City man, Joe McGinness, is circulating a petition that he hopes will help change the Madison County Board of Chairman's job from an appointed position to an elected one.

And Madison County Board Chairman Nellie Hagnauer said that the petition drive has his blessing — provided McGinness' intentions are in the right place.

"I talked to Mr. McGinness about this several months ago and told him that as long as he is doing it for the good of the taxpayers of Madison County, I am all for it," Hagnauer said.

Madison County Clerk Debbie Saltich said McGinness will need 500 signatures by Aug. 22 to place the question on the Nov. 2 ballot. McGinness, 54, said he has many more than the 500 required signatures already and will file them the first week in August.

"This is a bipartisan thing. It's not anything meant to attack one person in particular, especially current County Board Chairman Nellie Hagnauer," McGinness said. "But if the county board chairman is elected instead of appointed, I feel he will be accountable to all voters, not just the 29 county board members."

Hagnauer

Currently, the chairman is selected by a vote of board members. Hagnauer agreed that accountability is the issue, although he may not see it the same way McGinness does.

"I have no idea how long the position has been (appointed), but I know there are only three or four counties in the state that have elected chairmen," Hagnauer said.

"I am sure that when county government was established years ago, there was a reason the board chairman was elected by the board members rather than the voters. The chairman is accountable to each of the board members who are in turn accountable to the voters in their respective districts," Hagnauer said.

"But if the chairman is elected by all county voters, who else is he accountable to?" Hagnauer asked.

"But if Mr. McGinness is doing this to get rid of me ... well, I'm not going to be here forever. But I'm not gone yet."

McGinness also helped change the face of the Granite City Aldermanic Board. A referendum drive he sponsored to cut the number of Granite City aldermen from 14 to seven passed by a 2-1 margin. It will go into effect next year.

McGinness, who is confined to a wheelchair, said his disability is partially responsible for the active role he has taken.

"Anyone who lives on a fixed income feels the high cost of government," McGinness said. "There are changes that can be made to cut those costs. I don't consider myself to be a political activist, but if I can help make a change for the better, I will."

Fighting school violence

Guidelines help educators decide on course of action

By Nicole Vaughn
Staff writer

Educators in Madison and St. Clair counties are now armed with a new set of guidelines to help them combat crime and violence in their schools.

"A Guide to Improving School and Law Enforcement Relations" was released at a workshop Thursday. About 300 educators and law enforcement officials attended the unveiling of the guide that spells out when classroom incidents should involve police.

"Schools are not exempt from (state) statutes," said Edwardsville Director of Police Ben Dickmann. "Social good does not end at the school property line."

Dickmann, Highland Police Chief William Pierce and St. Clair County Regional Superintendent of Schools Martha O'Malley discussed the new guide after its introduction at the workshop.

The guide represents more than a year of work by the Education and Law Enforcement Partnership Committee of Southwestern Illinois.

The committee includes members of the Madison and St. Clair County Regional Offices of Education, the Southwestern Illinois Law Enforcement Commission and the Regional Research and Development Services at Southern Illinois University at Edwardsville.

"Schools are not exempt from (state) statutes. Social good does not end at the school property line."

— Ben Dickmann
Police director

Many of the offenses listed in the guidelines — assaults, discovery of weapons or drugs, thefts — would already bring police to a school. And the guidelines encourage that practice.

The guide says that school officials should do what they can to obtain and maintain evidence but attempt to disarm an individual only if "it can be accomplished without violence occurring."

But the guide also spells out when police should be dispatched as opposed to just being notified of a particular incident.

"Two second-graders fighting over a kickball don't need to be brought to the attention of the police," Dickmann said.

But if a fight involves certain factors — racial motivation, the use of a weapon or incidents resulting in serious injury — police should undoubtedly be brought in, Dickmann said.

The guide says that sexual abuse incidents — including fondling — should always be reported "without unreasonable delay" when the victim is less than 13, when there is a subsequent complaint by the same victim, regardless of age or where a weapon is displayed.

The guide also clears up confusion about searches. According to the guide, school officials may search students when there are grounds to do so and may also inspect "all public property" — including lockers — at any given time.

Collinsville Unit 10 Board President Paul Welch did some work with the committee. He said that the guide is a good point of reference as well as a procedural reminder for educators.

"There are a lot of situations that it's nice to think about before it happens instead of saying, 'It's happened. What do we do?'" Welch said.

While much of the policy is already observed in Collinsville Unit 10, Superintendent John Renfro said it helps to erase doubt about when the police should be called.

It also provides some uniformity not only with surrounding districts, but in districts like Unit 10 that include a number of schools and deal with more than one police agency.

Three charged in robbery

Two men and a juvenile female were charged Wednesday with armed robbery involving a Cross Check convenience store in Belleville May 27.

Reginald Beasley of East St. Louis, Tracy Wilson of Lovejoy and Sherrishia Davis of Belleville each were charged with one count of armed robbery in the incident.

The two men allegedly entered the store at 1200 Royal Heights Road at 1:43 a.m. May 27 wearing black ski masks and clothes and demanded money from the clerk, who was talking on the telephone at the time. One suspect brandished a gun before taking an undetermined amount of cash.

Beasley, 20, of the 1700 block of North 32nd Street, is being held on $35,000 bond and Wilson, 24, of the 600 block of South 6th Street, is being held on $25,000 bond. Both are in the St. Clair County Jail.

Davis, 15, of the 5700 block of Memorial Drive, is being charged as an adult for her alleged role in the robbery. She is being held on $15,000 bond in the St. Clair County Juvenile Detention Center.

Man faces firearm charge

23-year-old West Madison man has been charged with possession of a firearm by a convicted felon.

A federal grand jury in Benton, Ill., issued the indictment against Claude E. Shelby, of the 900 block of Jackson Street, last week.

The violation allegedly took place May 20 in Madison County, according to U.S. Attorney Charles Graec.

If convicted, Shelby faces a maximum sentence of 10 years in prison and/or a fine of $250,000 and up to three years supervised release.

The case was investigated by the U.S. Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms.

•Lathrop

More than three years ago, Lathrop, a private developer, began excavation for a proposed residential subdivision in the Dobrey Slough area. Lathrop removed dirt and trees to create a two-acre lake on the six-acre "wetland" area.

He planned to build homes around the lake — one for himself and one for relatives — and then expand the development project to make it profitable.

His theory was that a larger, deeper holding pond would relieve some of the storm water problem for area residents. The lake would retain water until an existing pump could remove it to the Nameoki Ditch or, eventually, Horseshoe Lake.

But Lathrop's project came to a halt in early 1992 when the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers and the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency cited him for building in a wetland without a permit.

He was ordered to cease and desist all work on the project, and now has until Friday to sign a consent decree forcing him to restore the area to its original condition. He plans to meet face to face that day with Col. Tom Stuermann, district engineer for the Corps' St. Louis District.

The U.S. EPA has direct administrative penalty authority, which allows the agency to levy fines of up to $25,000 per day of violation of the law without a court hearing or trial.

Lathrop said that he could not possibly comply with the terms of the consent decree — even if he wanted to.

"I don't know of any banks that will loan me $30,000 to $50,000 to turn three-quarters of a million dollars of real estate back into a swamp," he said.

Lathrop who grew up in the slough area and still lives there — said his proposed subdivision was initially a flood relief project that planned to fund by building and selling homes.

"The stormwater drainage could be done privately as development takes place between the slough and Horseshoe Lake. I'd be willing to do that, build some nice homes and make a little money too," Lathrop said.

He said recent rains and flash flooding proved that his project helped drainage problems in the area. But, he said, he suspects the Corps of Engineers will make an example out of him instead.

"My project is based on sound engineering and greatly expands the stormwater storage capacity out here. I believe the Corps is after me because I embarrassed them. They studied it for years. I went out there and did something," he said.

Computer changes IP bills

Illinois Power installed a new $30 million computer system over Memorial Day weekend that will bring both immediate and long-term changes in the handling of customer information and billing.

Among the immediate changes are the introduction of new account numbers that appear on customer bills, new cities or addresses for some customers and a new location for the return bill stub on the monthly bill.

An older, obsolete computer system installed in 1975 was removed. The 24-hour service center will be available for outage and emergency calls over the weekend, but Illinois Power asks that customers avoid conducting routine IP business between noon Friday and midnight Sunday.

Unlike its predecessor, which cataloged customer information by address, the new system ties information to people. That means Illinois Power can retain specific information about customers who move to new addresses within IP's service territory.

Customers on life-support equipment, for example, will no longer need to inform IP of their special status each time they move. The new Customer Information System will recognize life-support customers by name, regardless of their address.

"This system positions us to respond to many different customer needs," said IP's Director of Customer Relations Roger Pontifex, who helped develop the system.

Other immediate changes: Customers will get new account numbers on their bills. (Please record it for use when contacting IP.) Some customers will have a new city name, and in some cases a new address, on their bills.

Bill stubs to be returned with payments will be detachable from the bottom of the bill instead of the top.

181 get their kicks traveling Route 66

By Chris Bosen
Correspondent

In the 1960s, we hummed "Born to be Wild," a tune about heading out on the highway and looking for adventure.

Saturday morning at Fairmount Park in Collinsville, motors roared to life in 181 vehicles carrying people looking for more than just adventure as part of the 5th annual Route 66 Motor Tour.

"This is for people who aren't just looking for Great America or Six Flags but enjoy old cars and meeting people. That's our attraction, anyway," said 47-year-old Oran Hayes who was preparing to make the trip to Chicago in his classic red 1936 Corvette.

Hayes and his wife Debbie, from Portage, Ind., were taking the tour for the first time in the car he has owned for 25 years. Collinsville Mayor Fred Dalton welcomed those taking part in the tour. As each car left Fairmount Park, it drove under an arch donated by State Farm, with a sign that read, "1994 Illinois Motor Tour."

Among those on the tour were Bill and Lucille Lambert and their cousins Vernon and Marian Hoffmann of Belleville.

"We've wanted to do this for a long time but things always interfered," said 62-year-old Bill, who had to choose from among 11 classic vehicles to make the trip in.

One of the things interfering was last year's Great American Race, a coast-to-coast, 7-day trip from California to Virginia in which the quartet finished 26th of the 93 cars that started and 72 that finished.

What makes that trip impressive is that it was in Lambert's vintage 1935 Chevrolet.

Lambert picked something a bit more modern from his stable in Washington, Ill., for this two-day trip, however, in the form of a blue 1947 Oldsmobile convertible.

Asked why he chose that particular car Lambert responded, "It just happens to be the same type of car as the one I was courting her (Lucille) in. It's not the exact car because it was either keep the car and not get married or get married and get rid of the car. It was a close decision," Lambert said with a chuckle.

Gardens for Kids Educational, Worthwhile And Downright Fun!

FRANK'S NURSERY & CRAFTS

Where Beautiful Things Begin

Gardening is an activity that many people think is limited to adults only. That certainly doesn't have to be the case! A child's very own garden can be a special place indeed.

Remember your childhood days? Your yard possibly served as your own little Busch Stadium (or for some, Sportsman's Park) as you imagined yourself being a World Series hero. Maybe the yard was a make-believe ranch, complete with horses. Perhaps an old dress became a beautiful evening gown. It's all in the imaginative world of children. And a garden of their own allows that imagination to flourish.

We came across a newsletter from the National Garden Bureau and it has some excellent ideas on children's gardening. We'd like to share some. For starters, few activities offer as much potential for fun, intermittent activity and educational opportunities as a child's very own garden.

A pole bean tepee could be a Jack and the Beanstalk Garden, a collection of giant gourds could be a garden for the giant, Cinderella's garden could have pumpkins and lady slippers. Think of what appeals to your child and go from there.

Other ideas include an ABC garden that has plants from asters to zinnias, and a cereal garden that has the grains used in breakfast cereals. What child doesn't relate to cereal?

A sense of personal ownership is very important. Adults may want everything in neat rows in their own gardens, but kids don't really care. What's important is the garden belongs to the child, and the child should be involved in its planning. Signs with the word "NO" should be non-existent. Children can read the "NO" half of a sign that says "NO Littering," without understanding anything else. They don't want to see the word "NO" anywhere.

Personalizing the child's garden is also an excellent idea. An easy way is to pour a small square of concrete and have the child make an imprint of his or her hand in it along with their name. Perhaps you could include concrete somewhere else in the garden, also with the hand print.

A garden should not be considered a forbidden place, where they should only go when there is work to be done. They should be able to go in it whenever they want. They like to caress a purple eggplant or feel a nice shiny tomato. They want the veggies to be theirs. Have you ever wondered why petting zoos are so popular? The kids actually get to touch the animals, not merely view them from a distance. A child's garden should accomplish the same thing. They should not only be able to look, but touch.

You should be aware, however, that kids don't like weeding at all, and shouldn't be expected to do much of it.

Another thought worth pointing out is that kids should avoid planting radishes. We know they're a pretty red color and they'll sprout very quickly, but kids simply can't relate to them. Most kids don't like radishes, period. Instead, let them grow what is more appealing, like the cereal garden we mentioned earlier.

So why not give it a try? It can be beneficial to both you and the youngsters.

Torch to pass through area

Anyone interested in participating in the Olympic Torch ceremony in Granite City should contact the Tri-Cities Area Chamber of Commerce at 876-6400 to register.

The Olympic Festival Torch will pass through Venice, Madison, Granite City and Pontoon Beach June 24. The torch has been traveling across country and will eventually be used in the July 1 opening ceremonies of the U.S. Olympic Festival, to be held in the St. Louis metropolitan area.

R. C. Bush, executive vice president of the chamber, said 61 individuals have registered to participate as the torch is carried through Venice, Madison, Granite City and Pontoon Beach.

About four more spots are available for those wishing to carry the torch in this area. The cost is $25 and the distance is one-fifth mile. The 13-plus mile relay through the Quad Cities will begin at about 8 a.m. Friday, June 24, near the Venice Community Center on Broadway. The torch will be carried on Broadway in Venice and Madison Avenue in Madison into Granite City.

The relay will continue down Madison Avenue to 27th Street, where it will turn left and continue around Wilson Park to Fehling Road.

The torch will be carried on Fehling Road across Nameoki Road to Johnson Road, continue on Johnson Road to Pontoon Road, and be carried east on Pontoon Road to Highway 111 in Pontoon Beach.

The relay will continue south on Highway 111 and terminate near the Village Hall in Pontoon Beach.

The torch will then be transported to the parking lot of Wal-Mart, where a second relay segment will begin. The torch will be carried east on West Pontoon Road to Nameoki Road. Runners will carry the torch on Nameoki Road to Madison Avenue, south on Madison Avenue to 27th Street, and 27th Street to State Street.

The relay will continue along State Street, around Wilson Park to Fehling Road. The torch will be carried for a final lap around the Granite City High School track and football stadium.

After the relay is over, ceremonies will continue at Wilson Park and the high school. Refreshments will be served and a prominent guest speaker is tentatively planned for the event.

The torch run is being made possible in this area by the four municipalities plus the Granite City Park District, the Granite City Rotary, Madison-Venice Rotary, Granite City Optimists, Madison County Transit, Tri-Cities Area Civic Alliance and the chamber.

Proceeds from the torch relay are being used to purchase tickets to festival athletic events for children in Granite City, Madison, Venice, Pontoon Beach and Mitchell who would otherwise be unable to attend.

Nearly 4,000 of the best amateur athletes in the nation will compete in 37 sports events at 25 sites throughout the region July 1-10.

Activities will include wrestling competition and track and field events at Southern Illinois University at Edwardsville and bicycling time trials on the Great River Road near Alton.

Extension

Service hiring

The Madison-St. Clair Unit Extension Service has announced that Robert Belim, a specialist in crops systems for the University of Illinois Cooperative Extension Service, will join the Edwardsville Extension Center this month. Coming from the DeKalb Center, Belim will support all unit offices in the Metro-East area: Monroe, Madison-St. Clair, Clinton, Bond, and Calhoun-Jersey.

MetroLink gets funding push

By Bonita Tillman
Staff writer

The second leg of the MetroLink System got a push down the track with approval of federal funds in a House committee.
The $19.5 million approved by the House Appropriations Committee will be used to purchase vehicles for the St. Clair County extension ($10 million), to complete Phase One construction ($6.3 million) and improve security and safety on the existing route ($3 million).
County Administrator Dan Maher said the Congressional delegation must be commended for its continued work to get funding.
"Any of these projects (light rail, airport and new bridge) is a series of small steps. You have to start feeling pretty good about this area as far as where we're going," he said.
Maher estimated that the three projects are worth about $1 billion in infrastructure work.
U.S. Rep. Jerry Costello said the MetroLink funds still have several hurdles to cross before they are final.
"Full committee passage of the $19.5 million sends Phase II of light rail down the track toward extension to Scott Air Force Base," he said.

Because the funds will allow a down payment on the rail cars, Bi-State Development Agency, which operates the system, will save money in the long run and make MetroLink "even more comfortable and accessible to its thousands of daily riders," Costello said.

"It'll also ensure that the equipment needed to make light rail happen will be in place later in the decade," he added.
Costello and local elected officials pushed for passage last year of a sales tax increase to pay the local share of the extension, a move Maher said helped make the job easier for Illinois delegates to get support.

"I think they got commitments early on based on us doing our work," he said. "When they went back, things probably were made easier."
But federal program cuts continue to stiffen the competition for funds, Maher added.
Costello had said other communities, especially St. Charles, Mo., were lined up behind him to get federal funds for their extension plans, but St. Clair County had taken the lead by getting the local funding on track.

by that water. "We still have to file for the necessary (IEPA) permits," Affolter said.

"But we don't expect that to be a problem," she said. In January, Affolter said, local officials met in Springfield with Vanohmme, director of the Illinois Department of Transportation's Division of Water Resources.

Included in the group were herself, fellow 7th Ward Alderman Andy Crites, Greathouse, Mayor Ron Selph, Granite City contractual engineer Joe Juneau, Namooki Township Supervisor Ken Davis and Joe Parente, Madison County Building and Zoning official. Affolter said Vanohmme indicated that heavy metal contamination would not be a problem with this project, and that the addition of two nearby subdivisions — Partney Estates and the Legacy — improved the project's chances of approval.

"One of the things they look at is how many people this will help," he said. "There are probably 1,000 homes in Granite City and Namooki Township that will be affected by this," Affolter said. She said Granite City records indicate that, since 1983, the city has spent at least $3 million to repair sewers damaged by high groundwater and about 60 percent of those are in the Dobrey Slough area.

"This is something that will help everybody. In the past, it has been one entity going after the project at a time. I think the fact that we all went up to Springfield arm in arm had a lot to do with them being willing to listen to us," Affolter said.

The Division of Water Resources, the Federal Emergency Management Agency and the MESA are expected to pay for the project, Affolter said.

Construction on the project could begin next spring if the project is officially approved, she said.

EPA

cleanup the "least disruptive" and the "most effective" of all remedies proposed.

U.S. EPA Region V has proposed a $35 million Superfund cleanup of lead contamination at the NL Industries/Taracorp site here. That plan calls for removal of the top six inches of soil in a large area of Granite City, Madison, Venice and Eagle Park where the lead level is found to be 500 parts per million or more. That contaminated soil would be added to an existing 250,000-ton lead scrap pile at 15th and State streets and the pile would then be sealed over.

The plan does not include any remedial action with regard to house dust, paint or drinking water.

A recent health study here conducted by the Illinois Department of Public Health and several federal health agencies appears to show that condition of the home — including the presence of lead dust and lead paint — accounts for a large percentage of children with high blood lead levels.

Tarpoiff said the EPA plan here is "the equivalent of the ancient example of straining the goat and swallowing the camel."

"The Colorado compromise represents two major changes in position," Tarpoiff said.

"First, a willingness on the part of EPA to accept the reality that soils are a less likely source of elevated blood leads, and second a willingness on the part of the (potentially responsible parties) to address the total problem," Tarpoiff said.

As part of the consent decree in Colorado, the parties deemed potentially responsible for contamination have agreed to establish voluntary education programs for children, teaching those children ways to avoid potential contamination such as washing hands and avoiding chipped paint.

While each region of the EPA is autonomous and sets its own policy with regard to cleanup, Tarpoiff said he hopes common sense prevails with regard to the Granite City cleanup.

"Children's exposure to lead has the same effect in Granite City as it does in Baltimore as it does in Boston as it does in Colorado," Tarpoiff said.

Electronic receiver helps restore woman's sense of hearing

By Scott Wuerz
Staff writer

For many people, everyday sounds like those made by traffic at rush hour or a train rumbling by when they are trying to sleep are a nuisance. But for Glen Carbon resident Deborah Jones, those mundane noises make every day an adventure.

Jones was born with nerve deafness, and had very little hearing. As she grew older, the few noises she could distinguish began to fade.

This spring, though, Jones heard birds sing outside her window for the first time—with a little help from modern technology. Jones is one of the first area residents to receive a cochlear implant—an electronic receiver that stimulates auditory nerves and amplifies sound. The device is placed in the skull behind the ear and receives magnetic signals from another external device similar to a regular hearing aid. "I found out about the implant around October of last year," Jones said. "I decided to have the surgery, but it was a month after that before I found out if it could help me."

"Doctors made me wait until all the wounds from surgery healed, and it seemed like forever." When Jones decided to have the cochlear device implanted, she wasn't sure it would help her.

"They decided to implant the device on my left ear because the right one didn't have any hearing at all," Jones said. "I was afraid that if something went wrong I would lose the little bit of hearing I had left. But I'm slowly losing it now, so I decided to take a chance."

After her incisions healed, the device was activated just before Thanksgiving.

"I was so disappointed the first day," Jones said. "All I could hear was irritating noises, but the next day my hearing got a little bit better, and continued to get better."

Dr. J. Gall Neeley, the doctor who installed Jones' implant at Barnes Hospital, equated getting used to the device with learning a new language.

"The cochlear implant stimulates hearing nerves electronically," Neeley said. "Patients usually describe the sounds they hear as buzzes and clicks, but as time passes they learn to distinguish between different speakers."

"It's hard to measure how closely the device resembles what is referred to as 'normal' hearing in much the same way it is hard to measure how much the Chinese language resembles Spanish." Despite the differences, Neeley said, the device is enormously helpful to people who suffer from diminished hearing.

"Some people who have the device can carry on a very good telephone conversation," Neeley said. "Some can even identify different birds. For people with naturally good hearing these are daily occurrences, but for implant recipients, they are a Godsend."

Jones' husband, Jim, said the device has helped the whole family. "Our social life has improved since my wife had the surgery," he said. "She used to be really bashful in public, but now she is confident in a conversation. It makes me feel better, too, that she can hear a smoke alarm going off, or someone who shouts a warning to her."

Jones said her favorite benefit from the device is the ability to hear the noises made by her children in the house.

"Now when my kids are done taking a bath they can yell for me to come dry them off," Jones said. "But I can also hear when they say things behind my back. Every once in a while they forget I can hear them, and I catch them by surprise."

locker rooms, concessions, restrooms, a multipurpose room and a huge press box.

"THAT'S GOT TO BE a sports-writer's dream," Lang said. "We can put 100 press (members) up there with no problems. We did that in anticipation of having some major events there."

Ticket sales have been brisk for the Festival. Lang said it's possible that the three-day event will soon be a sellout, and he advises fans that if they plan to attend the track and field competition, call (800) 84-GAMES as soon as possible. An event pass is $30; individual sessions are $12 apiece.

Brad Hewitt, SIUE's assistant athletic director, is the venue manager. Bob Stegemeyer — the former baseball coach at Granite City High — is the volunteer coordinator. Lang said more than 800 volunteers will be used during the track and field and wrestling competition, which will be held at SIUE's Vadalabene Center from July 24.

"THIS IS A HUGE thing."

Eagles

victory in Granite City's 8-5 win in the second game.

DePew, the team's catcher, said Hendrickson entered the seventh inning against O'Fallon and knew he was close to pitching a no-hitter. Hendrickson fanned the final batter on three straight strikes.

"That's about as hard as I've seen him throw," DePew said. "He threw three high, hard ones for strikes. I think he could smell a no-hitter. He knew he had a chance for a no-hitter and he went after it."

The Eagles went after a sweep in the second game and got it despite some uncharacteristic mistakes in the field. The Eagles came back from a 2-0 deficit in the first inning and were led by Doug Duncan's four runs batted in, including a three-run homer.

DePew said Harshany, who recently ended his college career at Southern Illinois University-Edwardsville, is slowly coming back to form. Harshany was the league's top pitcher last summer.

"Brian threw the ball well, but we didn't play great defense behind him," DePew said. "He

This is very unique from the standpoint that, in our lifetime, we won't see another Olympic Festival in this area again. I hope people take advantage of it while they can."

— Harry Lang
SIUE track coach

Lang said, "It's a great opportunity for the university. We're taking it seriously and trying to use it for the area to get benefit and exposure out of it."

"This is very unique from the standpoint that, in our lifetime, we won't see another Olympic Festival in this area again. There's going to be a great event here. I hope people take advantage of it while they can."

"Hopefully, we'll have some other major events here. But this will be the only Olympic Festival."

The final-track and field teams (men and women) will be selected this week at the University of Tennessee in Knoxville. Lang said 325 athletes — approximately 10 percent of the total number of participants in the Festival, whose main site is St. Louis — will be at SIUE. Approximately 220 track officials will be needed to coordinate the various events.

MEN'S EVENTS ARE: 100-meter hurdles, long jump, hammer, shot put, high jump, pole vault, triple jump, 4x100 relay, 3,000 steeplechase, 400, 10,000, 110 hurdles, discus, javelin, 100, 1,500, 5,000, 400 hurdles, 800, 200 and 4x400.

Women's events are: 100-meter hurdles, high jump, 10,000 race walk, discus, shot put, 4x100 relay, 200, javelin, 110 hurdles, 1,500, long jump, 800, 400, triple jump, 100, 10,000, 400 hurdles, long jump, 3,000 and 4x400 relay.

Lang said the track's surface, manufactured by Balsam Corp. of St. Louis, is top of the line.

"The surface we have on our track is the same surface that two of the last three Olympics have been run on," Lang said.

the 241-250 class. In the 9th-10th grade age group, Matt Weissenborn placed first at 101-107. In the Senior group, Jeff Estrada won the 149-160 class.

Granite City had seven more champs in the freestyle division: Josh Royce (59-63), Gary Oxford (72-77), Adam Dunnivant (101-116) and George Kirgan (130-135) in the 8th grade group.

Kelly Buckleberry (56-57) and Greg Buchek (49-57) in the 10th-10th grade group; and Tony Buchek (170-190) in the Senior group.

In addition, Jamie Kirby, a former Granite City wrestler now residing in Tennessee, won the 154-167 class in the Senior age group.

establishing some new rivalries.

Those are the linchpins for a blooming basketball program to blossom and grow to the next level. Kentucky Wesleyan (Owensboro) has already done that. The Panthers have won seven national titles. Southern Indiana (Evansville) is quickly moving that way. The Screaming Eagles finished second nationally the past season.

SIUE WOULD LIKE to get on that fast track. The Cougars have signed six new players, including Granite City's Larry Mosby and Ty Laux of Clive Memorial High/Lewis and Clark Community College.

"We have signed some good recruits, but next year is going to be more of a transition year for us," Margenthaler said. "By 1995-96, we should be going full swing into the league."

And leaving Nowheresville.

FAMILY

Travelers Abroad hold meeting, view Normandy invasion sites

Travelers Abroad held its May dinner meeting at Jerry's Cafeteria with 21 members and one guest, Nina Fallon, viewing a program on sites involved in the D-Day invasion of Europe 50 years earlier.

Dr. Alice Purdes, president, welcomed the group and prizes were won by Mary L. Swan and Marieann Hanula. Purdes announced that the group would be in recess until Sept. 26, when the program will be on "Hummocks."

Gen and Joe Hill presented a narrated slide program on World War II sites when the Allies were invading through the Normandy beaches. Also shown were the British War Rooms and unusual sights in London.

The Hills' route through the area included a hovercraft trip from Dover to Calais and then to the American Cemetery at Omaha Beach and the Henri-Chapelle Cemetery near Liege, Belgium.

The American Battle Monuments Commission, established by Congress in 1923, constructs and provides permanent maintenance for all American cemeteries on foreign soil.

The Normandy American Cemetery site was chosen because of its historic location on a cliff overlooking the famous Omaha Beach, Normandy, the name of the province, was the scene of the greatest amphibious troop landing in history.

The 172-acre cemetery and memorial was completed and dedicated on July 18, 1956. Use of the site has been granted in perpetuity by the French government.

There are 9,386 graves of Americans there, including 307 marked as "unknowns." 14,000 bodies from this area were returned to their American families.

Headstones are of white Italian marble, bearing either a star of David or a Latin cross. Most of these gave their lives during the landing operation or the establishment of the beachhead.

A slide of the marker for a Granite City resident, Henry E. Lueders Jr., a friend of the Hills, was shown. He died July 22, 1944, and was serving with a Missouri Infantry division.

Other slides showed the area where one can quickly determine the location of any grave, and the roses planted throughout the area.

Other scenes showed the Pointe du Hoc where a Ranger battalion was forced to attack by using grappling hooks and ladders.

ders to get to the German pillboxes on the top. This was on D-Day, June 6, 1944.

In this same area, slides showed, are rusty remnants of crafts that had been sunk to make a breakwater. Two persons present at the Travelers' meeting said their husbands were involved in the June invasion.

The 57-acre Henri-Chapelle American Cemetery and Memorial near Liege, Belgium, was established first as a combat burial site in September 1944 and then it became a permanent site, completed and dedicated on July 9, 1960.

Most of the personnel buried there were either involved in the 1st Army's drive in September 1944 or in the wintertime "Battle of the Bulge." Many of these soldiers were temporarily buried in other areas and then moved to this permanent cemetery.

In front of the graves area is a bronze statue of an archangel holding a laurel branch. The cemetery contains 7,989 graves with 92 listed as "unknowns."

There are 32 pairs of brothers buried side by side, and at one place, three brothers. The marker for another friend of the Hills, buried there, was shown.

Local Belgian families have adopted nearly all these graves and they are visited on religious holidays and weekends with floral offerings.

Additional slides showed the area near Compiègne where the armistices of both World War I and II were signed.

There is a reproduction of Marshall Foch's private rail car where the War I armistice was signed by the Germans and the a.m. Hitler, on June 22, 1940, forced the French to sign an armistice in the same railway car to make clear their submission.

A statue of Joan of Arc is also at Compiègne. History says she hid in the church there until she was discovered in March 1430. From the church, she was taken to prison.

Back across the English Channel, the first slide was a statue of Abraham Lincoln. From his statue, the group proceeded by slides to the Cabinet War Rooms.

This nerve center of Britain's war effort was located in the rock basement of a government building in the heart of central London.

The War Rooms were speedily converted on the eve of War II as an emergency underground accommodations and the nerve center for Winston Churchill, the War Cabinet, and chiefs of staff of Britain's armed forces.

They were in operational use from Aug. 27, 1939, until the Japanese surrender in August 1945. The complex of 21 rooms, with spartan quarters, can now be viewed just as they appeared during the war.

Until 1991, when the Cold War ended, these "forgotten" rooms were still out of bounds for any visitors.

Some slides showed the prime minister's seat and desk, in front of a large world map, and from which he made four war broadcasts.

Churchill preferred to work and sleep above ground and only slept below ground a few times. One slide showed an external view of the Government Office and the concrete wall at the base of the building installed during the winter of 1940 to prevent any blast damage to the rooms.

Another slide showed heavy red steel supports installed underground to protect the basement.

In the War Cabinet room, where more than 100 meetings were held between 1940 and 1945, there was a double-handed clock which expressed the difference in London's and Washington's time.

This was the site of the calls made by Churchill to Presidents Franklin Roosevelt and Harry Truman. The Bell Telephone labs of the United States developed a gigantic radio scrambler and installed it in the basement of Selfridge's Department Store.

With a code name of "SIGSA-LY," this was the first secure telephone link between London and Washington. It was a closely guarded secret during the war.

Another slide showed the Map Room, manned day and night throughout the entire six years of the war. It contained a group of colored telephones, nicknamed the "Beauty Chorus," which linked individual service war rooms to the area. Still visible is the slogan, "Speech on telephones is not secret."

To end the program, several up-to-date slides showed Lady Di's palace, some of the show-case rooms, as well as gardens. An aerial view exhibited the large area involved.

Others in attendance were Betty Duff, Mary Evangelaur, Eunice and Juliette Hatscher, Jimmy Hayes, Rose Schmidt, Barbara Williams, Betty Townsend, Dorothy Hoedebeck, Marguerite Lexow, Isabella Southwick, Eleanor and Charles Schweitzer, Marjorie Schocker, Helen Lilly and Mary St. Cin.

Horoscope

Wednesday, June 15

The sun may be in Gemini, the sign of friendships, but today, Venus, the love planet, enters Leo, the sign of romance. All romantic bets are off. The slate has been wiped clean. People unconsciously reveal the true motives behind their actions. Look and listen, and you'll learn which deals to sign and which to forget. Special help is available for those in the entertainment and advertising fields.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Choose the wisest course rather than that which seems the most fun, and you'll ensure a secure future. Spend time cleaning and polishing rather than shopping. A love interest extends an invitation.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Be discreet without being dishonest. Handle a sensitive colleague or employer with kid gloves. Financial decisions are up to you. A spouse or lover balances your practicality with romance.

GEMINI (May 21-June 21) The dynamic between you and an old friend has changed — you cannot expect to go back in time. Stand up for yourself on the job today. Talk over a career move with a spouse or lover. Bills are reduced.

CANCER (June 22-July 22) A change of pace revitalizes you — read a book or take up a hobby if you cannot get away. Try an unorthodox approach when job hunting. Love interests are extremely persuasive. Financial aid is sound.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Profits come from past work. Try extra hard to connect with a relative or loved one. A love interest is touched by a romantic gesture. A friend or relative makes a business proposition. Voice a concern.

TODAY'S BIRTHDAY (June 15) Rambunctious, exuberant, charismatic — that's you. Love with someone from the past helps you ismistic — that's you. Love with someone from the past helps you close a difficult chapter in your life. Then, a new Leo or Pisces love may begin. In August, you overcome a long-standing problem. Money multiplies in October. New jobs come in January. Hot business opportunities come in August while you're on vacation. Your lucky numbers are 5, 12 and 20.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Turn your attention to unfinished projects and assignments. Avoid letting your expectations interfere with your perception of reality. Keep track of financial details. Return an admirer's romantic interest.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Love comes along in its own good time. Avoid expecting romance to conform to your schedule. Keep your eyes open, and you'll find employment opportunities. Bargaining and negotiations save you money.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 21) Ambition may take you far in your career, but it means little to your personal relationships. Balance work and family — or else! Resolve conflicts over the phone. A financial payoff may not be worth the work involved.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21) Time is on your side where a creative project is concerned. A spouse's or lover's organization is an inspiration to you. Avoid using credit. You have more influence than anyone over an elderly relative.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Concentrate on one thing at a time. New jobs open up. Money or health insurance is yours. Employers and supervisors are impressed by your dedication. Love takes your mind off a problem.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18) Employers are in receptive moods — make financial or career-related requests. Family members welcome your latest love. Be encouraging as well as critical of a child. You have luck at games.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20) You have planted an important seed — now give it a chance to take root. A family member needs unconditional love and support. You receive payment for a special service. Be direct with a romantic partner.

'Quad Cities Crusade for Christ' set

The "Quad Cities Crusade for Christ" will be held July 17-20 in the Granite City High School gymnasium.

The crusade is a cooperative effort of churches throughout the Metro East area.

Kelly Green, of Mobile, Ala., will be the featured evangelist. Contemporary Christian artist Luke Garrett will provide special music.

Meetings will be held nightly beginning at 7. In conjunction with the crusade, "The Frontliners," a group of about 200 teenagers from churches across the country, will converge on the community.

Beginning June 16, The Frontliners will spread throughout the community to spread the message of Jesus Christ and share their beliefs with others.

Green has been a popular speaker throughout the United States and South America. His life was changed Oct. 30, 1970. He married his wife, Beth, in 1974, and they have two sons, Jonathon and Taylor.

Green graduated from Mobile College cum laude, and won an area award in political science.

He continued his studies with graduate work at Southwestern Seminary in Fort Worth, where he was the first recipient of the Oscar Thompson Memorial Award in Evangelism. He was awarded a master of divinity degree in 1985.

Green is committed to telling people that Jesus is in the life-changing business. He says that Jesus died and arose from the dead so that Christ could change people's lives no matter where they live or what their background.

Athletic banquet held

Holy Family's school cafeteria had much excitement on Sunday, April 24. Decorated with red, white and black balloons, streamers and table coverings, the Hawks athletic banquet was getting underway with approximately 200 athletes, coaches, administrators and parents in attendance.

Woody Halbrook, master of ceremonies and athletic chairman, began the festivities with a short welcome. Father William Flaherkeller, pastor, led everyone in an opening prayer followed by a pot luck dinner.

Cynthia Gagich, and husband Michael, were special guests at the banquet as Gagich delivered the keynote address.

Gagich, head volleyball coach at Granite City High School, talked to the athletes and parents about commitment. She stressed that the athlete needs to set goals and be committed to attaining them. Being part of a team must be something an athlete really wants, not just does because it seems to be the thing to do.

Following Gagich's talk, was the presentation of awards. Sister Angelene, principal, presented certificates to the honor and scholar athletes. Honor athletes are those students who made the B honor roll during basketball, volleyball or cheerleading seasons. Scholar athletes are those who made the A honor roll during the seasons.

An asterisk denotes honor athletes and two asterisks denotes scholar athletes in the following listing. Both groups attain excellent or very good conduct and effort.

The girls A volleyball team was coached by Sister Mary Stanley, head coach, and assisted by Gerry Petty, Woody Halbrook and Rick Weissenborn.

Eighth grade girls participating were: Meleca Dickerman**, Rosanna Gordon** and Sarah Johnson**. Seventh grade girls participating were: Susan Baker, Amanda Brassfield**, Kathleen Curtin**, Kelly Fortune**, Casey Grieve**, Sara Halbrook**, Amy Pennell**, Dawne Turner**, Laura Weissenborn** and Lelia Wise.

The girls B volleyball team was instructed by Woody Halbrook and assisted by Sheila Wagner.

Sixth grade girls participating were: Sarah Carmody**, Jessica Fonden**, Lisa Hayes**, April Jordan**, Renee Kramer**, Angela Kromraj**, Kate Marzluft**, Megan Mehlic**, Della Moore**, Elizabeth Mushill**, Katie Ronk**, Elizabeth Rooney**, Ashley Slover**, Sarah Turck**, Andrea Vasquez**, Katie Vivod** and Jessica Wallace**.

The cheerleaders were sponsored by Debbie Johnson. Eighth grade cheerleaders were: Lynda Deloney**, Meleca Dickerman**, Rosanna Gordon** and Sarah Johnson**.

Terry Kelahan undertook the fifth grade girls basketball team with the help of Jeff Miller. Fifth grade girls participating were: Jessica Boyer**, Lindsey Bulva**, Erika Cayne**, Kim Deloney, Emily Kelahan**, Penny Meyer**, Sandy Miller**, Sarah Myers**, Jessica Oates** and Elizabeth Przygoda**.

(See ATHLETES, Page 12B)

Cindy Gagich, head volleyball coach at Granite City High School, speaks to the Holy family athletes and parents.

Fifth grade coaches Jeff Miller and Terry Kelahan enjoy the evening as they give Emily Kelahan her award.

Lively Taste

Fresh ginger comes in finger-like pieces that look like what they are — a root. You buy it by weight in the produce section. Add a little for a hint of the Caribbean. Just tear away the dark outer peel and finely grate or chop the exposed part. Combine 1 teaspoon grated fresh ginger with 5 tablespoons dry white wine or broth, 2 tablespoons lime juice, pinch of salt and pepper and 1/2 teaspoon finely grated lime peel. Add it to stir-fried chicken or pork and fresh vegetables when almost done.

Fresh Picks

Fresh corn is easy to pick these days. Don't let its sweet, delicious kernels become orphans. Cut it from the cob before or after cooking and add it to salad, salsa, stir-fry or cornbread.

Medicine Chest

Although expired medication usually just loses its effectiveness, some can become dangerous. For safety sake, flush an expired drug down the toilet or take it to the pharmacist for disposal.

Big Fat Tip

Fast-food chicken can be assessed on its value as white meat without skin or wing — 6 grams fat in a 4-ounce serving. It runs the same cooked on a rotisserie or broiled. Deep-fried chicken nuggets average 11 to 20 grams fat, fried chicken ranges from 14 to 30 grams fat and the same amount of dark meat adds about 6 grams fat.

Future Shop

Seafood's rise in popularity may give the industry the look of poultry as it grew and evolved into 'name' players and brands. The U.S. Department of Agriculture estimates domestic aquaculture must expand sevenfold over the next 35 years to meet consumer demand. To stay in the swim of future farming, legislators may have to talk to catfish lobbyists ahead of tobacco farmers.

SUPER SPUDS

Dads usually lead the chow line when potatoes are served. Mashed or hashed, boiled or broiled, baked or served naked, this wonderful vegetable is one of the most widely cultivated in the world.

If dad is watching what he eats, a medium (5 1/2-ounce) potato's unadorned beauty is that it is low in calories (120), contains no fat, is high in carbohydrates and has a respectable two grams dietary fiber.

Even better, it can play the lead in the flavor game or lean back and support anything from meat or seafood to other vegetables or creamy toppings. Of course, lower-fat toppings round out their appetizer to

Smash It

By the time children have teeth, they are ready for foods with texture. This stage usually comes when a child is six to eight months old.

Like with pureed foods, it is best to introduce any new food — such as mashed potatoes, mashed bananas and applesauce — one at a time to be certain the food agrees with the child and to catch any allergic reaction. As a rule of thumb, wait several days before moving from one new food to another.

Private Label Test Run

Smooth and rich, instant chocolate pudding can give sweet refreshment in a hurry.

Testers try pudding for 'instant' treat

Looking for an instant, easy-to-make, nutritious, delicious treat that doesn't cost much money? Journal staffers in this week's Private Label Test Run gave Bi-Rite chocolate instant pudding and pie filling. From Shop 'n' Save an "A" in all categories.

Bi-Rite instant pudding comes in chocolate and vanilla flavors in the traditional four-serving size and costs 33 cents, as little as half the price of national brands at regular price.

One of the testers mixed the pudding, using just a wire whip, to ensure it would set as quickly and easily as promised on the package.

It was mixed with low-fat (one-half percent) milk.

"I'm surprised that it tastes as good as it does with only half-percent milk. When you make something special for company, you always think of switching to richer milk, but I know you're not doing them any favor. This tastes rich enough," one taster said.

One tester was pleased by the color. "I have had a pudding with a reddish tinge. This has a deep, rich chocolate color," she said.

Several use instant pudding regularly, to serve by itself or combined with other sweet ingredients in dessert. One makes it with skim milk regularly to give breakfast-eaters extra calcium.

Thinking about the price, one tester said, "What a deal!"

Testers were interested in trying the vanilla flavor, based on their positive opinion of the chocolate pudding.

Fat trans-lation dealt blow

By CYNTHIA BERNER

Even if you feel "saturated" with news on dietary fat, there's more in the most recent issue of the American Journal of Public Health, respected Harvard researchers voiced concern over consumption of trans fatty acids and its link to heart disease risk.

Trans fatty acids are produced when liquid vegetable oils are made more solid at room temperature through the process called "hydrogenation." This process changes the natural structure of the fat to a "trans" formation.

Food products that contain margarine and shortening, such as commercially fried food, cake, cookies, high-fat crackers and bread — are predominant sources of trans fatty acids. The irony many consumers is that margarine and vegetable shortening were viewed as healthier than butter and lard, which are high in saturated fat and dietary cholesterol.

Concern over trans fatty acids actually is not new news. Accumulating research data has led suspiciously to point out trans fatty acids' ability not only to elevate LDL ("bad") cholesterol, but also to lower HDL ("good") cholesterol.

In several studies, the elevation of blood cholesterol levels from trans fatty acids was as potent as that of saturated fat — already known to elevate blood cholesterol. While this information is preliminary, some nutrition professionals already are calling for limiting the use of trans fatty acids in the food industry.

New food labeling rules make it easier for consumers to identify the amount of total fat and saturated fat a food contains. Trans fatty acids, because they are unsaturated, are not singled out.

However, a food product's ingredient list does identify "partially hydrogenated" fats — an indicator trans fatty acids are in the product.

Take heart, because the larger message has not changed. The new spotlight on trans fatty acids just fuels the argument favoring a low-fat diet. The goal for healthy eating is to lower total fat consumption to less than 30 percent of calories.

As researchers refine what they know about how dietary fat impacts the human body, it is prudent to use low-fat alternatives for spreads and toppings, reduce the amount of fat used in recipes and limit the amount of fried foods.

Ex-truck driver rigs way to cook burritos

Abbie Nelson, south St. Louis County, is the winner of this week's recipe contest for Chicken Road Burritos. For it she wins a prize of dinner certificates at the Pasta House Company.

Now an intern at Jewish Hospital, Nelson tested her burrito recipe on the road when she drove a truck cross-country. Finding truck stop food short on both nutrition and economy, she loaded a small refrigerator in her truck to take advantage of fresh produce as she traveled through the country.

She developed a repertoire of workable road recipes. While she used the heat of the engine to warm this one for leftover chicken, she advises a campfire, oven or grill works just as well. Recipes in the Cool Drink Recipe Contest will be accepted through June 30 for consideration as winner each of the four weeks in July.

Send one recipe per household to: Cool Drink Recipe Contest, 1714 Deer Tracks Trail, St. Louis, Mo. 63131. Anything from a simple iced tea to a frozen slush can be entered. Type or print the recipe on one side of the paper. Include name, address and telephone number on the entry. Name the Journal you receive.

CHICKEN ROAD BURRITOS

- 1 can (16 oz.) refried beans
- 1 ripe avocado, mashed

- 1 large tomato, diced
- 1 medium Vidalia onion, diced
- 8 oz. sharp cheddar cheese, sliced
- 4 large flour tortillas

Spread beans down center of tortillas. Top each with one-fourth of other ingredients — avocado, tomato, onion and last, cheese. Roll. Wrap individually in aluminum foil.

Heat in 350° oven, in hot coals of campfire or barbecue grill — or fire up that old diesel and take her around the block.

Quick cooking triggers head start for potato salad

By BETTY SERATI

It's summertime and the cookin' should be easy. Dinnin' embraces a casual approach. Picnics and barbecues are on everyone's schedule.

One staple for summer menus is potato salad. Unfortunately, preparing potato salad conventionally is not always quick to do.

However, using a microwave oven streamlines preparation time and cleanup time to allow more time for fun in the sun.

All the many varieties of potato salad call for cooked potatoes. A medium potato takes about 3 to 4 minutes on high power to bake in a microwave oven.

Because the skin forms a tight membrane covering, it must be pierced before baking. Eliminating this step can result in steam build-up, burst potatoes and a microwave oven splattered with potato flesh.

Increasing the quantity of potatoes means increasing the time. However, it is better to allow partial increments for additional amounts and add cooking time later if necessary.

For example, five potatoes can be checked for doneness in the time four would take.

It is also a good idea to turn potatoes over during cooking to promote even, thorough baking. As a potato begins to bake, gravity redistributes its high moisture content so a potato ends up soft on the bottom and firm on top. Turning prevents this one-sided cooking.

Of course, if skins are to be left on — as in a new red potato salad — care should be taken to scrub potatoes well before baking. When a salad calls for peeled potatoes, they can be left to cool to the touch before peeling and cutting.

Always allow standing or carry-over cooking time. Microwave-cooked foods, especially those cooked on high power, continue to cook a short time after removal from the microwave.

Expect cooking to continue about one-half to one-third the actual cooking time. Thus, a potato baked four minutes in a microwave oven continues to cook and soften up to two minutes after cooking ends. A cook who does not allow for carry-over cooking time will serve a wrinkled, over-cooked facsimile.

Hot German Potato Salad with a combination of bacon, onion and sweet-and-sour sauce on the potatoes — appeals to many palates — is an occasional summertime indulgence.

HOT GERMAN POTATO SALAD

- 5 medium potatoes
- 1 small onion, chopped
- 4 slices bacon
- 2 tbsp. sugar
- 1 tsp. flour
- 1 tsp. salt
- Pinch pepper
- 1/4 cup cider vinegar
- 1/2 cup water

Pierce potatoes. On platter lined with paper towel, cook on high power 12 to 15 minutes until done. Set aside.

In 2-quart dish, cook bacon on high power 3 to 4 minutes until crisp.

Drain and reserve grease. Crumble bacon.

Cook onion with bacon grease, covered, on high power 2 to 3 minutes until tender.

Stir in sugar, flour, salt and pepper. Add vinegar and water. Mix well.

Cook, uncovered, on high power 3 to 4 minutes until mixture boils.

Peel potatoes. Slice into hot mixture. Add bacon. Stir to coat potatoes with sauce. Cook, covered, about 2 minutes until warm.

Makes 4 to 5 servings. Betty Serati specializes in microwave cooking.

Spuds

main dish perfection. On Father's Day, dad even may be treated to a few fries as part of his special meal.

For a tastier tater, store unwashed potatoes in a cool, dark, well-ventilated storage area. Warmer temperatures encourages sprouting, shriveling and decay.

Direct sunlight makes them turn green, which makes them taste bitter. A potato can be salvaged by cutting away the green part. Leaving on skins saves time and nutrients. One pound of potatoes equals 3 cups peeled and sliced or 2 cups mashed.

Always prick a potato several times with a fork to keep it from bursting while baking. To bake potatoes conventionally in half the time, cut them lengthwise in half, place outside down on a greased cookie sheet and bake.

Baked-potato lovers fall into two camps. Baking in a microwave oven or in foil results in a soft skin (critic's interpretation: soggy). A potato baked in a conventional oven has a flaky, crisp skin (critic's interpretation: dry). Each dad can choose his own style.

Table Talk

Cook signs potato salad with personal signature

By Janice Denham
Staff writer

People grow up with a potato salad that tastes like home. It may have olives in it or be topped with sliced hard-cooked eggs and a sprinkle of paprika. It may be flavored with mustard or green pepper.

Table Talk's invitation to share potato salads showed how popular and diverse this summer specialty is.

Liz Crockett of north St. Louis County offered an easy, small-family version with Italian accents.

She combines 3 small red potatoes — cooked, cooled, peeled and each sliced in six pieces — with 1 can (16 ounces) good-quality whole green beans or fresh beans, drained; 3 small firm tomatoes, seeds removed and cut bite-size; 2 cloves garlic, minced; 1/3 teaspoon dried basil or 2 leaves fresh basil, shredded; salt and freshly ground pepper to taste.

Enough Italian salad dressing is added to moisten the mixture, then it is marinated several hours in the refrigerator before serving.

Jeanne Capla of south St. Louis offered multiple ethnic variations which, she says, "lets you be the chef."

Her base is 5 pounds potatoes, 2 medium onions, 3 ribs celery, 2 cups mayonnaise, 4 tablespoons mustard, 1/4 cup vinegar, 4 teaspoons sugar or 2 packets sweetener, 2 to 3 shakes of pepper, mixed traditionally. A little salt and 2 hard-cooked eggs are optional.

For German style, she adds 1 to 2 teaspoons celery seed. Italian accents come with 1 to 2 teaspoons Italian seasoning and 1/4 cup grated parmesan cheese. She sometimes adds 1/4 to 1/2 cup chopped pickle, with or without the mustard.

Domnie — the mother of Opal Durning of Herculaneum, made "the best hot potato salad I've ever eaten," her daughter says. "Salt and bacon drippings are against one's diet, but so good with barbecue once a year."

Her recipe: Brush and wash 10 medium potatoes. Cook in water to cover until they can be pierced with a fork. Finely chop 1 green bell pepper and 1 onion. Cook 8 to 10 slices bacon, finely chopped.

Just as meat is finished on the grill, peel hot potatoes. In a large mixing bowl, mash with potato masher. Add pepper and plenty of salt. Mix in pepper and onion. Pour piping-hot bacon and onion grease over potatoes and mix well. Serve immediately.

Gale Falkner of Fults, Ill., tells a camping tale. She prepared a big bowl of potato salad to go with barbecued pork steaks. Stored in an airtight container on ice in a cooler, it went along in a rented pontoon boat to cruise up and down a lake all day.

They were having a good time, so they pushed off the barbecue until dinner. Amid exclamations of how they looked forward to the meal all day, they opened the well-planned salad.

"The potato salad was floating in my so-called air-tight container. Our meal was steaks and potato chips that night," she said.

An unusual version is shared by Carol Hurston of south St. Louis County, who brought it back from a Finnish community in northern Michigan. It was a popular item for after-church gatherings and is her favorite for serving at showers, because of its taste and color.

- 2 cups diced celery
- 2 cups sliced radish
- 1 cup diced green bell pepper
- 1 cup chopped cucumber
- 1/4 cup chopped onion
- 10 hard-cooked eggs, diced
- 4 tbsp. minced fresh parsley or parsley flakes
- 1 1/2 tsp. salt

Pinch pepper
Cook and cool potatoes before peeling.
Dissolve gelatin in water.

Add to dressing.
Mix potato, celery, radish, green pepper, cucumber, onion and egg with salad dressing mixture, parsley, salt and pepper.

Cool and fold cake pan with nonstick cooking spray. Pack potato salad in pan. Refrigerate.

Mom should take dose of own milk-drinking advice

Moms everywhere spout the phrase "Drink your milk." They would be wise, however, to heed their own advice — especially when it comes to getting enough calcium to be healthy.

Adequate calcium is critical for both child and adult — particularly women. Currently, one of every five American women over age 65 has fractured one or more bones.

Our bodies need calcium even after we quit growing. Bones continue to get heavier and stronger, stocking up on calcium, until a person is in his or her 30s. From there on, it is like a checking account which has reached its maximum potential.

Three servings per day of calcium-rich foods in young adult years provides bones strong enough to withstand the calcium losses that begin in midlife. We are unable to make deposits in our calcium "accounts," but continuing calcium intake in our middle and senior years keeps us from withdrawing stored calcium and, thus, thinning bones that can become brittle and break easily.

Exercise also keeps bones healthy. Tugs and pulls of active muscles strengthen bones at any age. Avoid alcohol, tobacco and eating excessive protein to improve calcium balance further.

Many women cut back on dairy foods to avoid extra calories. Women would be wiser to use low-fat dairy foods and save calories elsewhere. Skim milk has only 90 calories, yet has just as much calcium as whole milk at 180 calories. Good non-dairy calcium sources are beans, calcium-fortified juices, corn tortillas and dark green leafy vegetables.

New food labels help identify high-calcium, low-fat choices. In fact, some foods that are good sources of calcium and have no other negative health aspect now are allowed to make health claims about calcium and risks for osteoporosis.

Skim milk is one food that meets the criteria for a health statement on the label. Whole milk would not qualify because, even though it is a good calcium source, it has too much fat to be "healthy."

Here's a recipe for a cool gelatin mold from the National Dairy Board that supplies half the calcium needed daily in just one serving.

WALDORF
YOGURT GELATIN

- 1 pkg. (3 oz.) lemon gelatin
- 1 cup boiling water
- 1 carton (8 oz.) plain low-fat yogurt
- 1½ cups (6 oz.) shredded Monterey Jack or Swiss cheese
- 1 cup diced, peeled apple
- 1 cup finely chopped celery

In medium bowl, dissolve gelatin in water. Stir in yogurt. Chill until slightly thickened.

Stir in cheese, apple and celery. Pour into 1-quart mold. Refrigerate until firm. Makes 4 servings; 294 calories, 13 g fat, 38 percent U.S. recommended daily allowance of protein, 50 percent U.S. RDA calcium each.

FRUIT ICE

- 1 pkg. (4 servings) sugar-free lemon gelatin (or other flavor matching fruit)
- 1 cup boiling water
- ½ cup cold water
- Ice cubes
- 1 cup sliced strawberries (see note)

In blender, blend gelatin and boiling water on low speed 30 seconds or until gelatin is dissolved. Mix cold water and ice cubes to make ½ cups. Add to gelatin, stirring until partially melted. Add strawberries. Blend 30 seconds.

Pour into 8-inch square

pan. Freeze 4 hours or until frozen.

Let stand at room temperature about 10 minutes before serving. Scoop or flake with fork to serve.

Makes 3 cups or 6 servings; 15 calories, no fat or cholesterol, 45 mg sodium, 6 g carbohydrate, 1 g protein and no dietary fiber each. Food exchange: Free, limited.

Note: Instead of strawberries, ¾ cup chopped prunes or 1 can (8 ounces) crushed, undrained pineapple in juice can be used. One serving Prune Ice has 50 calories and 13 g carbohydrate, with 1 fruit as food exchange. One serving Pineapple Ice has 30 calories, 6 g carbohydrate and no dietary fiber, with ½ fruit as food exchange.

FEELING FIT
By Mark Lymberopoulos

How hard do you need to work out? To improve fitness, exercise aerobically — hard enough to break a sweat and raise the heartbeat to target level. But to improve health, even moderate activity is enough, as long as you do it regularly.

Many older women most at risk for osteoporosis are not getting enough calcium. Many don't like to drink milk or may become lactose intolerant as they age. Yogurt, canned salmon with the bones in it, and supplements where necessary can make up for the milk deficit.

When you lounge, don't bend your knee into a sharp V. The knee, at a 90-degree angle, should be no further forward than the big toe. Keep the front foot flat on the floor.

Rowing uses more muscles and more calories than anything but cross-country skiing. It offers an aerobic workout and an upper-body workout, too — which is probably why rowing machines have become so popular. Good ones can be expensive, though.

Don't buy a rowing machine — use ours! You'll enjoy using sturdy, top-of-the-line equipment at

Mighty little selenium faithfully works overtime

Selenium is a trace mineral in seafood, organ meat, lean meat and grains.

Even in small amounts, though, this "micro-nutrient" protects people's health in a big way, helping digestive systems and metabolism work smoothly and guarding cells against damage that can lead to cancer development, according to the American Institute for Cancer Research.

Selenium is supplied in many common foods, like seafood (tuna), shellfish (oysters and crabs), poultry, meat (especially organ meats such as heart, kidney and liver), whole grains and seeds. Food processing, however, removes large amounts of it. For example, all-purpose flour contains only a small fraction of the selenium found in whole wheat flour.

It is best to get selenium from foods and not supplement pills, because too much selenium can be toxic. A balanced diet that includes the recommended six minimum servings of grain products per day, as well as moderate amounts of lean meats, seafood and poultry provides all the selenium needed. The Recommended Dietary Allowance is 70 micrograms per day for adult men and 55 micrograms per day for adult women.

Selenium functions as an antioxidant—a substance that repairs cell damage that could lead to cancer development. A human body needs different kinds of antioxidants—such as selenium and vitamins A, C and E—from fruits, vegetables and grains to ensure proper functioning of processes like immunity and digestion.

For a free guide to vitamins and minerals in foods, write American Institute for Cancer Research, Department VG, Washington, D.C. 20069.

Seafood Gumbo makes a delicious party food. It uses several foods containing selenium. Serve it with hard-crusted, whole-grain bread or rolls for maximum nutrition and enjoyment.

SEAFOOD GUMBO

- 1 tsp. margarine
- 1 cup chopped onion
- 1 clove garlic, minced
- 6 1/2 cups water
- 1 pkg. (10 oz.) frozen okra
- 1 pkg. (10 oz.) frozen corn
- 1 cup sliced celery
- 1/2 cup chopped green bell pepper
- 3/4 lb. shrimp, peeled
- 2 1/4 cups quick-cooking brown rice, uncooked
- 1 cup vegetable juice
- 1/4 cup flour
- 1 can (16 oz.) whole tomatoes, drained, chopped
- 1 tsp. thyme
- 2 tsp. paprika
- 1/2 tsp. pepper
- 1 lb. imitation crab flakes or real crabmeat.

shredded Pepper sauce to taste

In large saucepan, melt margarine over medium heat. Sauté onion and garlic until tender. Add water, okra, corn, celery, green pepper, shrimp and rice. Bring mixture to boil. Reduce heat to medium. Cook, covered, about 10 minutes until rice is tender.

Mix vegetable juice with flour until no lumps remain.

When rice in gumbo is tender, add tomatoes, vegetable juice mixture, thyme, paprika and pepper. Cook at medium temperature until gumbo is slightly thick. Stir in crab. Heat through.

Spoon into bowls. Serve with bread and hot sauce on the side.

Budget, cooking skills, time direct scope of meal

People try to stretch meal-time budgets by providing their families with great-tasting, nutritious meals without breaking the budget. This goes for everyday meals, as well as get-togethers where festive food becomes important.

Add the fact that there was no place in the budget for cooking lessons and an easy-to-handle kitchen with money-saving convenience becomes a popular necessity.

Here are a few easy ideas for taste-tempting dishes in such a kitchen. These include cheese for flavor and convenience:

- For a party, microwave 1 pound process cheese spread, cubed, with 1 jar (8 ounces) salsa on high power 5 minutes, stirring after 3 minutes. Serve hot with vegetable dippers and tortilla chips.
- Brown 1/2 pound ground beef. Add to 1 jar (8 ounces) salsa, 1/2 cup milk and about 8 ounces process cheese spread or reduced-fat cheese, cubed. Cook until cheese is just melted. Add 1 package (7 ounces) macaroni which has been cooked and drained. Spoon into 1 1/2-quart casserole. Bake in preheated 350° oven 15 to 20 minutes or cook 8 minutes on medium-high power in microwave oven until bubbly.

- Cover 1 slice whole wheat bread with 3 thin slices apple, 2 slices fat-free cheese and second slice bread. Spray frying pan and both sides of sandwich with non-stick cooking spray. Grill each side until golden.
- For a quick warm lunch, place one slice bread in a soup bowl. Place one slice cheese on top of bread. Pour hot tomato soup over bread and cheese for a lunch treat.

- For a chicken salad with color and pizzazz, this colorful one will curry favor.

CHICKEN SALAD

- 2 skinned, boned, cooked chicken breasts, cut in bite-size pieces
- 2 1/2 cups chicken broth
- 1 cup uncooked rice
- 1/4 tsp. pepper
- 1 tsp. curry powder
- 4 green onions, thinly sliced
- 1 red bell pepper, chopped
- 1/2 cup fat-free mayonnaise
- 2 oz. reduced-fat cheddar cheese, cubed

In saucepan, bring chicken broth, rice and pepper to boil over high heat. Stir. Reduce heat to low. Cook, covered, about 25 minutes.

In large bowl, place cooked rice. Sprinkle with 1/2 teaspoon curry powder. Sprinkle warm chicken with remaining 1/2 teaspoon curry powder. Add to rice. Add onion, bell pepper and mayonnaise, stirring gently to mix well. Refrigerate, covered, at least 2 hours.
